HMS MOHAWK

HMS MOHAWK is the twelfth ship of the Royal Navy to bear the name, the first being a 14 gun Sloop recorded on the Leeward Islands Station in 1783.

The last MOHAWK was one of the illustrious Tribal class destroyers of the last war. She was completed in 1937 and saw action in Norway and in the Mediterranean before being torpedoed off Tripoli defending Malta convoys in April, 1941.

The present MOHAWK was built by Vickers Armstrong Ltd. at Barrow and launched by Lady Villiers in April, 1962. She was first commissioned on 29th November, 1963.

She is a Type 81 (Tribal) Class General Purpose Frigate and in 1970-72 was extensively modernised in Portsmouth Dockyard. Her armament consists of two 4.5" guns, seacat close range anti-aircraft missiles and mortar MK 10 anti-submarine weapons. She carries a Wasp helicopter for a variety of roles including the carriage of anti-submarine torpedoes.

Her machinery includes a gas turbine to boost the steam turbine when high speed is required. With a comprehensive radar and communication system and full air conditioning she is a very versatile ship suitable for service anywhere in the world.

HMS MOHAWK has a present complement of 17 officers and 260 men including a detachment of 21 Royal Marines.
